C-3. Mental Health Personnel

The duties of the mental health and medical personnel are listed below:

- a. Social Work Officer, MAJ, AOC 73A67. The social work officer directs mental hygiene activities; conducts prisoners' counseling functions; performs prisoner evaluations; assists in the development of training programs; and supervises the behavioral science specialist. He is responsible for monitoring the correctional treatment program for the prisoners. Each prisoner is evaluated and a correctional treatment program is devised with continuous reevaluation as additional information becomes available. The following aspects of correctional treatment are considered and closely monitored: employment, training, education, medical condition, religious participation, off-duty activities, and family and financial problems. The social work officer identifies prisoners who need psychiatric evaluation and refers them to the clinical psychologist.

b. Clinical Psychologist, CPT, AOC 73B67. The clinical psychologist applies psychological principles through direct patient services to help prisoners adjust to the confinement environment; evaluates emotional disturbances and mental and behavioral disorders; and promotes effective mental health.

c. Behavioral Sciences Noncommissioned Officers and Specialists. The behavioral science specialists help prisoners adjust to the confinement environment, learn problem-solving techniques, and develop productive and acceptable behavior. They meet with the prisoner within 48 hours of in-processing, complete necessary records, and initiate a follow-up plan. They provide advice concerning the prisoners' record, conduct, attitude, and progress. They make recommendations concerning clemency, parole, restoration, custody, and job assignments.

d. Emergency Treatment Noncommissioned Officer and Medical Specialist. They provide routine sick call and emergency treatment to prisoners. They coordinate CHS for medical activities beyond their capabilities.
